

Search

GO

- HOME
- FEATURES
- INTERVIEWS
- CINEMA
- MUSIC
- DVD
- WORDS
- GAMES
- The Hater
- T.V. Club
- Videocracy
- A.V. Blog
- Inventory
- Random Rules
- Films That Time Forgot
- Commentary Tracks Of The Damned
- Games Of Our Lives
- Redmeat
- Savage Love
- Newsletters
- Crossword
- Archives
- Login

FEATURES

Random Roles: Janeane Garofalo

By Sean O'Neal
June 7th, 2007

Welcome to Random Roles, wherein we talk to actors about the roles that defined their careers. The catch: They don't know beforehand what roles we'll ask them to talk about.

The actor: Janeane Garofalo, who's been everything from a proto-slacker in Reality Bites to a brash media consultant on The West Wing. Garofalo briefly flirted with leading-lady parts in critically maligned romantic comedies, but she's still best known as "the sarcastic best friend," a role she embodied so well that the industry still casts for a "Janeane Garofalo type" if they don't go directly to the source. Following a two-year stint on Air America radio, Garofalo returned to stand-up comedy, doing a string of dates alongside her Ratatouille co-star Patton Oswalt.

The West Wing (2005-06) — "Louise Thornton"

Janeane Garofalo: I was really excited to do it, because I'd always wanted to try drama with odd moments of levity. Plus, it was an exceptionally well-written show, and it's very rare in television when you get on something good. I was only supposed to do three episodes. All of a sudden, I was on 22 of them, and I just didn't say anything. I thought they forgot I was only supposed to do three. They just never stopped calling me in every Monday for table read-throughs. I did have a problem with my eyebrows, though. I drew them in super-heavy like Groucho Marx, and I can't really explain why I would do a thing like that. It looks ridiculous. Just know that I know it looks ridiculous.

Wet Hot American Summer (2001) — "Beth"

JG: That was the best time I ever had doing a project, and also the drunkest. I fell down a lot, due to the wet terrain and the heavy drinking.

Mystery Men (1999) — "The Bowler"

JG: That was also before I quit drinking. I didn't fall down that much, though, since there wasn't wet terrain in Los Angeles. It was very long hours and very little got accomplished. It was one of those alleged blockbusters that was overbudgeted and overhyped. It went from being a great script when it was sent to me, to being—in my opinion—a fairly mediocre non-event. But it was nice to get paid that much to sit around.

The A.V. Club: Do you think they were trying to build a franchise?

JG: [Laughs.] I have no idea what they were trying to do, but they sure didn't accomplish it.

AVC: Would you have liked to have seen yourself on, say, a Burger King glass?

JG: Well, I was a doll, and I was on T-shirts. I had a T-shirt, but one of my dogs ruined it. He'd had surgery and the vet suggested I put a shirt on him so he wouldn't lick his scar. He then proceeded to urinate all over it.

The Adventures Of Rocky And Bullwinkle (2000) — "Minnie Mogul"

JG: I was only in that for two seconds, and I never saw it. I was thrilled to work opposite Carl Reiner and Robert De Niro. Mr. Reiner was very chatty and delightful, but I learned that if you want Robert De Niro to like you, don't speak at all, and he'll be friendly to you. If you're chatty and ask him dumb questions that he's been asked a million times, he'll be quiet. If you're quiet too, he'll be conversant with you. We'd done Cop Land together, and because I was quiet on both sets, I think he felt comfortable being nice to me.

Email

Print

Discuss

More: Music, Feature, alcoholism, Ben Stiller, Reality Bites, The West Wing, Mystery Men, Janeane Garofalo, Random Roles, Television

MOST DUGG A.V. CLUB ARTICLES

- 53 diggs AVQ&A: Best concert experiences
- 11 diggs Samantha Bee
- 10 diggs David Byrne
- 4 diggs Don't blame me, I voted for Bill and Opus: 13 fake presidential bids

Advertisement

RECENT

Jun 6, 2007
The Hater's Guide To Summer Fun
Here are a few items to make this summer a little less hateful.

Jun 5, 2007
Permanent Records: Albums From The A.V. Club's Hall Of Fame
How a jazz-inflected bohemian singer-songwriter got it right from the start.

Jun 4, 2007
Inventory: 10 Films That Memorably Feature Smoking
The A.V. Club's weekly list.

Jun 1, 2007
Ask The A.V. Club: June 1, 2007
Were the '80s really a special time for musical one-hit wonders? And what's that book, that other book, and that one game from last

